. Syromolotov's painting was revised, as we have seen, and the most provocative of his remarks were removed, he has become reconciled with his son and in general has calmed down and become more sociable. Based on the analysis of statistical data, the authors conclude that law enforcement agencies need to take into account the local characteristics of the state, structure and dynamics of crime to develop the most effective and appropriate measures to prevent criminal acts, and such information will allow citizens to adequately assess and understand the situation on the territory of their residence.
