He brought it to pass by first allowing an irrevocable law to be passed that called for a total Jewish genocide 3:13. Just to catch us all up with where we've been, the book of Esther is written in the time of Persia when King Xerxes is the king.

Why doesn't the book of Esther mention God?

The book of Esther takes place about 130 years or so after the Babylonian captivity with Nebuchadnezzar taking the Jewish people out of the land of Israel. Again, the reason becomes clear later on, that Mordecai himself may not have even seen. His fits of rage were known by all.
