Li had first met Wu in Shanghai while en route to France in 1902; Chang had visited Wu in London in 1905. The dowry provided by the bride's side could be very costly when a bride came from a ruling house. Wedding rituals, exogamy rules, and concubinage showed many similarities from the aristocrats of the classical Chou period well into modern times.

In The Development of Family and Marriage in Europe 1983 Goody brings these conceptions to bear on the complex historical changes in Western history from the Roman Empire to early modern times, showing that marriage forms do not flow automatically from economic structures but are complexly tied to dominant institutions and ideologies. Family and Property in Sung China: Yüan Ts'ai's Precepts for Social Life. Of course, according to ritual status, the royal house of Chou was superior to its marriage partners, but it both sent daughters to and received brides from these lower-ranking houses.
