Scorpion from Barbary

So I found the divine afflatus did descend. He told me he had ordered the Secretaries of State to give me all necessary assistance of papers and particulars relating to it and enjoining me to make it a LITTLE KEEN, for that the Hollanders had very unhandsomely abused him in their pictures, books, and libels.

When reading through their diaries it becomes noticeable that they mentioned one another as correspondents and also recorded occasions when they met.

Diary entries from September 1666 (The Diary of Samuel Pepys)

In summer we lived much as the birds did, on our fruit and bread and milk; the sun was our fire, the sky our roof, and Nature's plenty made us forget that such a thing as poverty existed. I went to see the work at Woolwich, a battery to prevent them coming up to London, which Prince Rupert commanded, and sunk some ships in the river. I felt ready to do anything,—fight or work, hoot or cry,—and laid plans to free Simms.

Scorpion from Barbary

To London, with some more papers of my progress in the Dutch War, delivered to the Treasurer. This ceremony lay on me, which I performed with all the decency I could, inviting the Mayor and Aldermen to come in their formalities. She tells me he hath lost 140 l.

John Evelyn's Diary by Francis Philip Ed

. Sunday, the 6th of March, I went to Charenton, two leagues from Paris, to hear and see the manner of the French Protestant Church service.
