Portrait of Jennie (1948)

On the eve of the hurricane's anniversary, Eben rushes to meet Jennie at the site where she was supposedly killed. The whole sunny, sweet-smelling spring morning had come in with her. Pages and covers are very clean and intact.

Portrait of Jennie Movie Script

Nathan is a wonderful writer. Recently, I found out that the film was based on a novel by Robert Nathan, so I decided to read it, and I am glad that I did. Eben Adams is a young artist in New York who has yet to sell a single painting.

Portrait of Jennie Lyrics

One character remarks that the beauty of a woman should be eternal, and the artist tries to capture that beauty. He paints a sketch of this young girl, and to his advantage, stumbles across an art gallery who falls in love with the sketch. He calls the private school and asks for Jennie, but as he expected, there is no one there by that name.

Song: Portrait of Jennie written by J. Russel Robinson, Gordon Burge

Jones — so often underrated and never better than here — is luminous as the unfortunate Jennie. S Written by Robert Nathan and published in 1940. .
