May I therefore emphasise that the draft policy that arises from this Document and from your comments will be a combined effort. A fundamental application of geographical information systems GIS software is the creation of maps, but the breakthrough for silviculturists lies in the analytical power that results from the juxtaposition of multiple spatially explicit data layers in a comprehensive GIS.

Challenges for modern agriculture

A management information system for fuelwood and multi-purpose tree species research in tropical areas. Ways of reducing demand for wood, by the marketing of the many effective designs of stove available, must also enter the equation - these pay the extra dividend of improving hygiene in the home.
