Studies for a bestiary (1968 edition)

In 1953 the Tate Gallery, London held a full retrospective of his work. Over the course of his career, Sutherland's aesthetic evolved from a more precise realism to concentrating on disquieting, thorn-shaped caricatures of the world. His visits to the South of France began in 1947, and he would purchase a villa designed by Eileen Gray near Menton in 1955.

His training as a printmaker may have influenced his devotion to close observation of nature.
