Budget plan narrative

You can also enable the New HTML editor control in the Feature management workspace to use a more current editor. This information can include a description of the budget plan, or a list of assumptions, performance measures, revenue information, or proposed changes to services that led to the amounts on specific budget lines. Provided below is a justification template for such proposals.

Writing a Budget Narrative/Justification

This feature adds a Budget plan narrative section and two flags that are used for budget plan copying: Include budget description and Include revenue summary.

Budget plan narrative

The Copy a budget plan dialog box that appears includes the new flags. You can use the control to write new content, or you can paste content that was written and formatted in another text editor, such as Microsoft Word. The page includes the new flags.

Writing a Budget Narrative/Justification

Setting up the budget plan narrative Complete the following steps to turn on the budget plan narrative area and use the most current HTML editor that's available in the product. However, the flags are available only when the Action field is set to Create a new budget plan.

Budget plan narrative

Important Some or all of the functionality noted in this topic is available as part of a preview release. The content and the functionality are subject to change. This feature will enable you to use an HTML editor to control budget planners to document the considerations that went into creating the plan.

Writing a Budget Narrative/Justification

Include budget plan narrative fields when you copy budget plans. Follow these steps to enable the budget plan narrative description and revenue summary to be copied to new budget plans.

Budget plan narrative

The content that is added to these two sections can be printed separately in a budget plan narrative report. The narrative area also lets you change fonts and text formatting.
