Saramago's worldwide success Ensaio sobre a cegueira 1995; Blindness, 1997 was adapted to film 2008 by acclaimed Brazilian director Fernando Meirelles. One of the most potent novels of 2006 was the Cameroonian newcomer Léonora Miano's Contours du jour qui vient, which told the story of Musango, a 10-year-old girl living in war-torn Africa, whose mother, unable to feed her, casts her out when she is accused of witchcraft. Only this time he is an extra in a war film.
