Informed consent procedures with cognitively impaired patients: A review of ethics and best practices

Are there any consequences for the parents for withholding consent? Instead, they are best resolved by the parents, the child, and the health care provider deciding on the best course of action based on the facts presented. Imagine a 12-year-old patient who has just been diagnosed with cancer. Amended by Acts 1995, 74th Leg.

GA Informed Consent Law

In the prehospital situation the issue at hand is not usually providing care but rather the failure to treat. US federal regulations require a full, detailed explanation of the study and its potential risks.

Mental capacity, legal competence and consent to treatment

Some will regard as too parsimonious an approach that allows a patient's lack of objection to prevent their capacity being fully assessed and appropriate safeguards put in place before decisions are made on their behalf. Nothing in this Section shall be construed to require the making of a declaration for a terminally ill minor.
