The Great Wall of China at Jinshanling 2 Seven epic voyages were led by the great Chinese admiral Zheng He Yongle emperor of Ming made his favored eunuch Zheng He the admiral of a giant fleet of over 27,000 men. Like Wow, the Medallion with Return from a Spring Outing is just fantastic! It is believed to be from the late 16th century during the Ming Dynasty. Beijing and the Forbidden City Beijing became the capital of China after the Mongol invasion of the 13th century, completing the easterly migration of the Chinese capital begun in the earlier Jin dynasty.

Ming dynasty (1368

The painters of the Zhe School did not formulate a new distinctive style, preferring instead to further the style of the Southern Song and specializing in large and decorative paintings, most often of landscapes. The government was, in the broadest terms, divided into two parts: the imperial court and the civil bureaucracy. Though greatly affected by the confrontation with Western painting from the 18th century on, the style continued to be practiced until at least the 20th century.

The Age of Elegance: Ming Dynasty Furniture

By the later Ming period, Chinese exports were becoming increasingly important to the empire's economy. Similarly, lacquer carvings approached the height of their beauty and complexity during the Ming Dynasty. Another influential ware was the stoneware of Yixing in Jiangsu.
