Biography of Isabella d'Este, Patron of the Renaissance

In his absence, Isabella served as regent, defending the city as commander of the city's forces. The loyal subjects of the Marquis were filled with a sense of dismay. Meanwhile, Renzo da Ceri took the command of the papal forces south of Rome, and succeeded in repulsing the Imperialists under Lannoy, Viceroy of Naples. Encouraged by this success, the Pope opened negotiations with Lannoy, who came to Rome on the 25th of March, and signed a truce of eight months.
