Climatic Change 135, 699—711 2016. Thus, restoration of peatlands or, at least, building a substantive layer of peat, requires centuries or more. In contrast, dissolved organic carbon from disturbed peat swamp forest consists mostly of much older centuries to millennia carbon from deep within the peat column.

Deep instability of deforested tropical peatlands revealed by fluvial organic carbon fluxes

The new system results in a shallower but more narrowly spaced drainage system and maintains a more constant but relatively high watertable and reduces subsidence. Based on the results, compression index C_c and swell index C_s , the values were increased with the increasing peat particles size.
