Major Barbara by George Bernard Shaw: Preface

It runs a little down hill till the road branches.

FELLOW COUNTRYMAN

Indeed I see in them the very worst result of 1871. He is not only forgiven: he is idolized, respected, made much of, all but worshipped. His doom is the doom of Cain, who, failing to find either a savior, a policeman, or an almoner to help him to pretend that his brother's blood no longer cried from the ground, had to live and die a murderer.

Ezra Pound and G. B. Shaw: A Long Wordy War on JSTOR

Whenever my view strikes them as being at all outside the range of, say, an ordinary suburban churchwarden, they conclude that I am echoing Schopenhauer, Nietzsche, Ibsen, Strindberg, Tolstoy, or some other heresiarch in northern or eastern Europe.

Marlborough and other poems/Illustrations in Prose

It was familiar to me before I ever heard of Nietzsche. Perhaps afterwards I and my likes will again become indiscriminate rebels.

Countryman

This play of mine, Major Barbara, is, I hope, both true and inspired; but whoever says that it all happened, and that faith in it and understanding of it consist in believing that it is a record of an actual occurrence, is, to speak according to Scripture, a fool and a liar, and is hereby solemnly denounced and cursed as such by me, the author, to all posterity. At present I am too cornered by my uniform for any such luxuries.

The re-creation of that self which one is to a friend is an effort: repaying if it succeeds, but not to be forced. Now it is true that Captain Wilson's moral criticism of Christianity was not a historical theory of it, like Nietzsche's; but this objection cannot be made to Mr Stuart-Glennie, the successor of Buckle as a philosophic historian, who has devoted his life to the elaboration and propagation of his theory that Christianity is part of an epoch or rather an aberration, since it began as recently as 6000BC and is already collapsing produced by the necessity in which the numerically inferior white races found themselves to impose their domination on the colored races by priestcraft, making a virtue and a popular religion of drudgery and submissiveness in this world not only as a means of achieving saintliness of character but of securing a reward in heaven. I think that Germany, in spite of her vast bigotry and blindness, is in a kind of way living up to the motto that Goethe left her in the closing words of Faust, before he died.

Gundlach Bundschu Winery

Money is the most important thing in the world.
