Tafsir

As was the case with Ja'far, Ibn 'Aṭā' and al-Tustarī, al-Sulanī did not include in his compendium any conventional exegetical material, be it legal, philological or historical Bōwering, Ṣūfī hermeneutics. Other disciples of Ibn Abbas who had Shiite inclinations included and , who was also a disciple of.

AL

Beside the predominate effort to produce a text of the Qur'ān, there were also further, primarily theologically motivated, studies of the Qur'ān, which nevertheless profited considerably from the rise of Arabic philology.
