What is green growth and how can it help deliver sustainable development?

The Australia Pacific Climate Partnership supports Pacific governments to deliver climate and disaster resilient development and low-carbon growth by brokering climate and disaster science and information services through the following regional programs. We will continue to share our sustainable development policies and expertise through leadership seminars in policymaking, workshops on urban governance in cities, and water and sanitation projects.

In New Zealand Achieving the SDGs will require a cross-Government effort.

UNDP in Asia and the Pacific

UNDP engaged in extensive capacity building of sub-national authorities, through training, awareness raising and technical assistance, which contributed to the establishment of the Provincial Capacity Development Fund supported by a long-term policy development on decentralization in the Solomon Islands. In the past however, some NGOs from the wealthy nations have received a bad reputation in some developing nations because of things like arrogance, imposition of their views, being a foreign policy arm or tool of the original country and so on. In Tuvalu, Island Kaupules councils are better able to manage community resources after community leaders were trained on linkages between community planning and budgeting.

Strategy and Policy Development

Phase One focuses on the preparation of national assessment reports and the convening of an international workshop, to share experiences and agree on a common approach to the development and implementation of National Sustainable Development Strategies in Pacific SIDS. The Programme is shaped to assist countries to advance the global 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda tailored to each country's priorities, through focus on data, policy prioritisation, participatory planning, and budgeting and monitoring - and with accelerated action to meet the 17 Sustainable Development Goals SDGs.

Impact of COVID

It reviews key barriers and includes options for a policy framework and a set of criteria that developing countries could consider in their efforts towards green growth policy making.
