Richard Wagner Museum (Lucerne)

This is a closeup view of the bocal and brace on the serpent at the Wagner Museum. A place with one star is worth a look—after all, it made the list.

Also some amazing views of the lake from the house. If you take a tram, you've still got a bit of a hike to get to the house.

File:Richard

Only skirted upon is Wagner's Svengali-like relationship with Prince Ludwig. It premiered on the stairs in the Tribschen manor on 25 December 1870.

Excursion tips

I kinda think that if you are out this direction and profess a love for classica music, you probably ought to add this site to your list unless you know that all things Wagner make your skin crawl.

Life in Lucerne

Here is a view of the stairway looking up to the landing shown in the previous photo , taking from the first floor.

On the far left is an English bass horn, to the right is an ophicleide. The view is from the landing looking between the first and second floor, looking down to the first floor. Millions of the insane monarch's marks flowed into Wagner's pockets, paying for his indulgences and his projects and productions.
