

Dilwyn church - Herefordshire : NGR: SO 415 547 : an archaeological record of works : text Richard K Morriss and Robert Williams

City of Hereford Archaeology Unit - Scheduled Ancient Monuments in the Historic County of Herefordshire

Description: -

-Dilwyn church - Herefordshire : NGR: SO 415 547 : an archaeological record of works : text Richard K Morriss and Robert Williams

-

Canada Mines Branch Research Report -- 240

Occasional papers (Centre for Medieval English Studies) -- 1.

Occasional papers / Centre for Medieval English Studies / Tokyo -- 1

Hereford Archaeology Series -- 265Dilwyn church - Herefordshire :

NGR: SO 415 547 : an archaeological record of works : text Richard K Morriss and Robert Williams

Notes: Cover title: St. Marys Church, Dilwyn, Herefordshire.

This edition was published in 1996

Filesize: 54.98 MB

Tags: #Scheduled #Ancient #Monuments #in #the #Historic #County #of #Herefordshire

Dilwyn

The items put up for sale included the pews, harmonium, piano, carpet, pulpit furnishings, an electric fire and an oil stove. In Roman times such an assertion would not have been strictly true. The north wall has two 2-light windows similar to those in the south wall flanking the north vestry.

General Survey of Herefordshire Monuments

East and west windows are each of two cinquefoiled lights under a two-centred head.

Herefordshire County Parish Records Searched

The only other route which brings the county into the Antonine Itinerary is Iter XIII:— M. There are no figures for membership of this chapel before 1944, when there were four members, and in 1960 the number was the same. Fragments of other Roman roads have been identified or suspected within the county.

Dilwyn Parish Records

It was much altered and added to c. The outer surface smooth, the inner left rough.

Scheduled Ancient Monuments in the Historic County of Herefordshire

The mileages enable us to identify this site with the Bravoni o of the Antonine Itinerary, but, beyond that fact, and the traces of a much-scarred earthwork enclosing an area about half that of Roman Kenchester, we know nothing significant about the place. In Bishop's Wood in the parish of Walford-on-Wye vol. The passage through the innermost line of defence is normally flanked by a pronounced incurving of the ramparts.

Related Books

- Gateway to escape
- Exemplary theatre.
- Useful plants of Nyasaland
- Chinese medicinal herbs.
- Electrical fires and failures - a prevention and troubleshooting guide