There's violent death, and gun-play, in places despite the cover art on the edition I read, Cat doesn't wear or shoot a Colt here --but she's as fast-shooting and as accurate with a rifle as any man ; but it's handled matter-of-factly, and as in the real world, it's over quickly.

His presence proves useless when Strawn abruptly kills Frankie, and when the townspeople refuse to bring Strawn to justice, Catherine becomes a revenge-seeking outlaw known as Cat Ballou. Kid Shelleen convinces his partner-in-crime Frankie Ballou to go to the Saturday night dance instead of their usual visit to Crib Street and there he meets Cathy Morgan, the prettiest schoolmarm west of the Mississippi. Cat poses as a prostitute and confronts Sir Harry Percival, the head of the Wolf City Development Corporation, attempting to force him to confess to ordering her father's murder.
