Completion of the Navajo Dam in the next few years will bring several thousand additional acres under irrigation in San Juan County. Now the question is: What are the great American people going to do about it? Built of log and stone and covered with earth, these stout, hive-like structures are scattered singly or in groups of two and three among the pifion and juniper of the mesa tops, or along the floors of canyons near springs or arable patches of land.

The art of weaving came from the Pueblos. The best and the most of the game-protective laws now in force in the United States and Canada were brought into existence through the initiative and efforts of the real sportsmen of those two nations. Antonio de Mendoza, first viceroy of New Spain, determined upon an expedition into those northern lands.
