Principle 17	relationship that the bank has with the SdR, as the bank will seek to prepare the SdR to receive a direct inspection report. Beginning July 2008, following the RCP assessment visit, the SdR introduced a new procedure that stipulates that the inspection report is for the exclusive use of the SdR and the inspected bank and prohibits reproduction or dissemination of the report to third parties not authorized by the SdR.
Description	Bank Management Contact Banking supervisors must have regular contact with bank management and a thorough understanding of the institution's operations. By the occasion of on-site examinations, a high-level meeting with bank management is provided at the beginning and at the close of the inspection. A full report is delivered to the bank containing a comprehensive analysis of the profile, risk, and performance of the bank concerned. The Supervisory authorities regular contacts with relevant bank management on a yearly frequency in order to discuss the trends and strategies of the banks. Clarification of off-site reporting from one point to another and the concerns raised in the off-site analyses are usually dealt with through extensive meetings with the liaison person of the bank. Depending on the severity of concerns regarding off-site monitoring, the may trigger an on-site inspection and follow-up discussions with management between centrally set inspection visits.

Principle 18	Off-Site Supervision Banking supervisors must have a means of collecting, reviewing, and analyzing pertinent reports and critical ratings from banks on a daily and consolidated basis. The SdR has developed and implemented an efficient electronic framework for the collection of financial information from the banking system. The system is supporting a satisfactory off-site monitoring process, has improved the quality of information analyses, and is capable of alerting the SdR to major risks. Based on the information gathered by the SdR's information system, the official inspection team analyses liquidity, assets, and overall financial condition of supervised banks. The information for liquidity analysis is collected weekly and includes details on maturities mismatches and the composition of securities investment portfolios. The liquidity ratios, beyond the mismatches gaps, allows the revision of banks and securities pricing. Balance sheets of all banks are collected monthly, and they are examined for recognition of relevant report themes. Also, a set of ratios is calculated for new group members. Banks with general licenses are divided in two peer groups according to their size. Foreign banks and branches comprise a third peer group, and international license banks from the fourth group. Information regarding loans and permanent investments of related parties is collected and analyzed monthly. The capital adequacy ratios is collected and analyzed on a quarterly basis.

The aforementioned Governments are invited to afford the Court all the assistance which it may require in the consideration of the questions hereby submitted. The rest of the principles mainly related to uniformity of navigation dues, and the establishment of a special service for the collection of such dues, the exclusion of national customs houses from interfering in the matter of navigation dues or from throwing obstacles in the way of navigation, the maintenance of navigable channels, and the keeping of towing paths in good repair, and the establishment of regulations of police alike for all, and as favourable as possible to the commerce of all nations. So are the working methods.

Thus all the fantastic rumours about the nature and purposes of Zaleski's voyage, none of which was on the agenda, fall to the ground. In some cases, it has taken a formal turn with the conclusion of treaties 1. This report, the main portions of which are devoted to an historical study of the regime of the Lower Danube, and, above all, to a survey designed to establish what the legal position was at the time of the enquiry in regard to the questions forming the subject of the dispute referred to the Advisory Committee, concluded with a series of conciliation proposals.
