His most consistent targets are, first, the hypocrisy and cant underlying various social and sexual conventions, and, second, the vain ambitions and pretenses of poets, lovers, generals, rulers, and humanity in general. Footnote g: Ý And view unseen. Footnote d: Ý For Charles the Martyr their country defending.

Lord Byron: Romantic poet and great philhellene

There were four distinct issues of Byron's Juvenilia. If thus, when to my heart embrac'd, No pleasure in your eyes is trac'd, You may be prudent, fair, and chaste, But ah! However, of all things, literature has the most powerful influence on the global society.

Darkness. A Poem by Lord Byron. Written in 1818. A poem for the foreboding we might sense.

Footnote iv: 'For Charles the Martyr their country defending'. Fresh collations of the text of individual poems with the original MSS.
