Elephant Herds and Rhino Horns by Don Arthur Torgersen

Rhino killings are fueled by the false belief in traditional Asian medicine that crushed rhino horn can cure everything from cancer to hangovers. Save the Rhino has arguably the largest public profile of any rhino charity in the world.

Elephant Herd Tramples Rhino Poacher To Death In Kruger National Park

To make this point clear, ivory stockpile destruction has become an important technique used by governments and conservation groups to send a message to poachers that the sale of ivory is no longer supported by either the public or political administrations.

Do Elephant Tusks or Rhino Horns Ever Grow Back?

But something must be said for the ingenuity of having and using the built-in utensils that you were born with. Meanwhile, militant groups and international criminal syndicates have profited from the ivory trade, creating regional instability and strife. However, despite this very real possibility, some encouraging steps have taken place in the last few years that offer a glimmer of hope.

Are Rhino horns and Elephant tusks being dyed pink to deter poachers?

Al-Shabaa was responsible for the September 2013 Westgate shopping mall massacre in Kenya where 68 people were killed and more than 175 wounded.

Rhino vs Elephant

The project highlights orphaned and injured rhinos at the centre, direct victims of poaching, and their rehabilitation and subsequent release back to the wild. While dye is used in the process, it does not resemble the photographs online. Both are massive animals and possess certain unique qualities which they can use to hurt or even kill each other.

Do Elephant Tusks or Rhino Horns Ever Grow Back?

Hence, it is quite challenging to say who will win against whom. In , herders in Lapland, Finland tried spraying a special reflective paint on their reindeers to save them from dying in road accidents.

Are Rhino horns and Elephant tusks being dyed pink to deter poachers?

A census completed in late 2016 by the revealed that the elephant number is probably closer to 350,000. The manner in which the elephants and rhinos are stalked and killed is barbaric.

Fact check: Rhino horns and elephant tusks are not being dyed bright pink to deter poaching

Their tusks and horns are torn from their faces as they die a slow agonizing death. Many experts are predicting that unless a significant change in demand occurs soon, both species of African elephants, the African bush elephant and the African forest elephant, will become extinct by 2029.
