Decentralized Hospital Computer Program (DHCP)

This protection, which began implementation in 2010 and completed in 2012, allows VA to protect Veteran information by ensuring devices connected to the network meet VA security standards and are free of vulnerabilities. If the duration of the timeout is not specified by the variable DTIME and the duration exceeds 300 seconds, documentation in the package Technical Manual is required. If information has been changed, the application may automatically discard the information, or prompt the user to save or discard the information.

EHR And The VA: Part I

What seems like an archaic methodology was once standard practice. CRISP is a continuous planning methodology to improve information security by planning and tracking functions for security-related activities and makes adjustments to security plans and activities. Authentication demonstrates that the entry has not been altered, except when legally authorized.
