This may seem an odd occupation in an era when we are apparently escaping from the long hegemony of modernism.

NEW MODERNS FROM LATE TO NEO MODERNISM

For Marxists, the transition initiated the unequal and contradictory system that produced its antithesis, socialism and equality. The modern paradigm that grew out of the 19th century industrial revolution has played itself out, but the spirit of modernism lives on.

This strategy is, on the contrary, both very old and fundamentally reactionary, having cropped up again and again throughout history as a means of "demonstrating" the futility of any new idea or practice. The accelerated acculturation process occurring through the group dynamics of social media suggests a multicultural society of kindred spirits where everyone contributes to the common good -- but there is no panacea just over the horizon. Among these new forms were Earth art, which creates work on natural landscapes; Performance art; Installation art, which considers an entire space rather than just one piece; Process art, which stressed the making of the work as more important than the outcome; and Video art, as well as movements based around feminist and minority art.
