Addressing policy versus addressing the issue in a vacuum can be compared to addressing the root causes of a disease versus treating its symptoms.

Preparation for capable citizenship: The schools' primary responsibility

We have to teach children so much more than just reading and math. If a new law or regulation is being proposed - especially if it's ill-advised - if funding is about to be cut, or if a course of action on a specific issue is about to be chosen, it's time for action. In classes where there's a lot of sameness, the first thing we learned is that, though it might appear that there's a lot of sameness, there's always some difference.

If you're seeking a change in official government policy, close to an election may be the best time.

Vzdělávací politika: rozdílná vymezení, předpoklady a implikace

The public may be more progressive, and be behind the change you're aiming for. Policy formulation is often the result of compromise and symbolic uses of politics. Sometimes, it takes a highly motivated individual to get a policy change campaign off the ground.

foreign policy

It's these offhanded comments that are sort of biting and mean-spirited about the political climate that I think is problematic.

Let's Talk about Racism in Schools

It's still a serious problem, but nowhere near the problem it was for the first hundred years after the Civil War, largely because of the generational effects of the enforcement of anti-segregation laws. In addition to the power of certain groups and the media, significant events can act as policy triggers that immediately move issues onto the policy agenda. Preparation: Prepare well for changing policies.
