Archaeology in Wales

The Cabinet has a sub-group set up, chaired by my colleague Huw Irranca-Davies, bringing together Cabinet colleagues to see whether it would be practical to take some of that analysis and to put it to work in Wales using our new fiscal possibilities to support our ambitious policy agenda. Yn sicr byddwn yn adolygu'r adroddiad gan rapporteur y Cenhedloedd Unedig, a rhaid imi ddweud fy mod wedi darllen ei adroddiad ac rwy'n cytuno â chasgliadau'r Aelod dros y Rhondda ar y mater. ## Archaeology in Wales

The intention is, of course, for us to present a Bill that is as comprehensive as it can be whilst remembering, of course, the difficulties that were experienced and the strongly held views of some Members in relation to bits of the previous Bill. There are some who may not even want to go through that process in the first place, despite the fact that they may be entitled to benefits.
