The Three Basic Facts of Existence: I. Impermanence (Anicca)

According to Piaget's theory children should not be taught certain concepts until they have reached the appropriate stage of cognitive development. Learning theories can be categorized in three groups: behaviorism, cognitive constructivism, and social constructivism. This line merits discussion not least because the idea that understanding-why comes by degrees is often ignored in favor of discussing the more obvious point that understanding a subject matter clearly comes by degrees.
