Ambassador Johnson remembered as man who loved his family, country, school

I gave this an extra star because it had an ending line that REALLY throws you for loop and would have been perfect for an Alfred Hitchcock Hour.

Jacob Voorthuis' Diary

Almost 1500 people were said to have died and over a million pounds of property damage was incurred.

The Ashbourne portrait

In 1692 when a massive earthquake destroyed Port Royal, long the seat of the island's trade and a large residential area, the land across the harbour known as the Liguanea Plain after the giant iguana, began to look more attractive.

Ferens Art Gallery

John Jacques, Commander of the People's Militia, was elected mayor. Macdonald's birth will be opened in City Hall in time for the bicentennial birthday celebration on January 11, 2015.

Şūrat al

It joined the Folger in 1931 as a portrait of Shakespeare in preparation for the opening of the.

Şūrat al

Barrell interpreted these changes, especially the obscured coat of arms, as proof that the portrait was Edward de Vere. So every time there was a surgery I would lose six weeks, twelve weeks depending on how bad it was. In 1928, it was sold at auction to Eustace Conway.

Jacob Voorthuis' Diary

I'll not give it away but it is a REAL surprise. We will, however, try to publish comments that are representative of all received. In 1802, during the reign of George III, Kingston was granted a Charter as a Corporation, winning formal recognition as a city.

Former Kingston mayor Isabel Turner's likeness finally captured on canvas

Opened in 1927, it was restored and extended in 1991.
