Doing History: An Introduction to the Historian's Craft by Wendy Pojmann

The Society of American Archivists lays out clear expectations for graduate programs and what they should provide an aspiring archivist. Through one-on-one tutoring, the organization works to help adult students reach at least the fifth-grade level in reading. These programs share the use of integrated basic education, e.

The Historian's Craft

Stationed in Alsace as a fuel supply officer for the first months of World War II, Bloch was bored. They study and collect historical documents and memorabilia; conduct research on items, places, people and times of interest; and present their findings to colleagues, organizations, museums, schools and others. There are many options for you to choose from, each of which work for different people.
