The hospital then remained in a state of sus-pension until the property on Fifteenth and Sixteenthstreets, west of Fifth Avenue, was obtained. The original building was vacated February19, 1870. It is said that when the famous Field Marshal Blucher rode in triumphal procession through the streets of London after the battle of Waterloo he gazed about him in astonishment, and, true to his upbringing as a soldier of Frederick the Great and the military canons of the time, exclaimed: Gott in Himmel! Above WorthStreet there was a hilly country, sloping on the east towardthe Freshwater, and on the west toward the Lispenardmeadows and the Hudson, and dotted with the countryseats of wealthy citizens.
