MA Visual Practice

The teaching emphasis will therefore be on encouraging self-reliance, sustainability and personal creative responsibility through lectures, seminars, workshops and peer reviews, supported by group and individual tutorials. Studying here puts you at the heart of an international network of professionals in the glass and ceramics sector. We use a wide variety of teaching and learning methods and you will have high levels of contact with tutors who give regular feedback and support.

Visual Practices Across the University

This information was correct at the time of publication. You'll work alongside a diverse range of established artists, theorists, writers, curators and specialist technicians to develop your practice and professional career, and you'll meet, share practice and collaborate with staff and peers from a variety of disciplines as part of the MA Visual Practice community. You will have access to workshops in printmaking, 3D printing, digital photography, digital sewing and embroidery, woodwork, metalwork and casting as well as support in the development of film and sound.

Visual Practices Across the University

The colors should still appear natural but should have a subtle warmth. Expand each section to learn more about the types of art focused on through each primary and secondary area of concentration. You will also have additional project and exhibition spaces for paintings, prints and sculpture, plus digital installation and performance work, where ideas can be tested, outside of your individual space, providing an effective and discursive learning environment.

Practices of Looking: An Introduction to Visual Culture — NYU Scholars

It looks at painting, photography, film, television, and new media across the realms of art, advertising, news, science, and law.

MA Visual Practice

The author argues that university-wide courses on the study of images help to expand knowledge on diversified classifications of imaging practices.

Practices of Looking: An Introduction to Visual Culture — NYU Scholars

Art Practices is designed for students whose creative ideas move across media and who are looking for a more comprehensive critical approach to developing their art practice. This experience can take the form of working on live commissions, entering competitions and exhibiting work in public exhibitions.
