When the Rivers Run Dry : NPR

We had over 90 millilitres of rain over the weekend and our weir pool is overflowing again. As for the clothes on our backs - it takes 25 bathtubs of water to grow the 9 ounces of cotton to create one t-shirt! But that's after chapter after chapter detailing such disasters as the Aral Sea, which the Soviets basically destroyed and which the current government is continuing to destroy, and the Salton Sea in California, created by a mistake and now allowed to become a festering, drying blister in the Sonora desert, and the Dead Sea, which is receding visibly every year. Plants and animals grow and congregate around rivers simply because water is so essential to all life.

When The Rivers Run Dry by Fred Pearce

Many in the city only became aware of how severe the water crisis out west was with the news of the mass fish kills along the Darling last summer. Could this focus obscure a concern for souls? His many books include Fallout, With Speed and Violence, Confessions of an Eco-Sinner, The Coming Population Crash, and The Land Grabbers.
