

RACER # 3249908

- - North American Racer

Description: -

-RACER # 3249908

-RACER # 3249908

Notes: 1

This edition was published in -

Filesize: 40.62 MB

Tags: #North #American #Racer

North American Racer

The pupil is round, and the eyes are large and prominent.

North American Racer

North American racers occupy a wide variety of habitats, such as pine flatwoods, hardwood hammocks, prairies, sandhills, scrub, cypress strands, melaleuca forests, and limestone outcroppings. Smithsonian Institution Press, Washington, DC. They also occur on the Florida Keys.

North American Racer

North American Racer

In Florida, frogs, lizards, and small snakes make up the majority of their diet.

North American Racer

As always, if you are not 100% positive of the identification of a snake, it is best for everyone involved to leave it alone.

North American Racer

Despite their scientific name Coluber constrictor, racers are not true constrictors and overpower their prey by simply grabbing it in their jaws and pressing it against the ground until it stops struggling or by quickly swallowing it alive.

North American Racer

If grabbed or pinned, they will readily bite the attacker.

Related Books

- Sculpture sur bois au Moyen Âge - techniques et savoir-faire, le retable de Vex, les reliefs de sain
- Pentecost of Lickey Top
- New Testament disunity - its significance for Christianity today.
- Socialist thought - a documentary history.
- History of the primates - an introduction to the study of fossil man.