Rest in Peace, Julie Wilson (Message Board)

She had edge, and fire and temperament... Even when very successful, Barbara kept pinching herself to recognize where she was and what she achieved. In 1994, they performed a critically acclaimed concert series at the in London, which was recorded by DRG as Live From London. Pages and cover are clean and intact.

Barbara Cook

Her affectionate, firsthand experience helps give this concert a feeling of real intimacy. As far as she was concerned, we were one person. It was there, and at the Persian Room at the Plaza, that she created the style and look that would make her the star of the swank nightclub scene for the next decade.

She garnered two nominations for Best Entertainment and Best Actress in a Musical for the concert. She was particularly admired for her vocal agility, wide range, warm sound, and emotive interpretations. Wait for that one day we can bite free and get back out there in space where we belong, sail back over water, over skies, into space, the hook finally out of our mouths and we wander back out there in space spawning to other planets never to return hurrah to earth and we'll look back and can't even see these lives here anymore.

I only recognize Rosemary Clooney, but applaud all three women here, most especially Julie Wilson. Slept in the same bed with her.

Winer Deborah Grace

A book of considerable charm, with a surprising but entirely apt feminist subtext and appealing candor. She was named an honoree at the 2011. She went on to perform Sings Mostly Sondheim at for a sold-out fourteen-week run from December 2001 to January 2002, and again in June 2002 to August 2002.
