People disobey speeding laws all the time yet we still have them and are allowed to drive. I mean all of the above.

W. Rollins, Book Review: Burnell GM 2008: Freedom to choose. How to make end

The secondary audience is health professionals who deal with people in end-of-life care or with decision-makers on end-of-life issues: primary care physicians; nurses; geriatricians; psychiatrists; hospice doctors, nurses, and volunteer staff; caregivers for the seriously ill; oncologists; interns and residents; counselors; family therapists; psychologists; social workers who work with the dying and bereaved; attorneys; thanatologists; estate planning advisors; senior citizen center staff; college teachers in death and dying courses; professionals taking courses in psychology, gerontology, thanatology, nursing, and social work.

Freedom to Choose : How to Make End

Freedom For All You have a right to life and a life well lived. Other than the information about PCA pumps, this book covers many end-of-life issues very well.

Freedom to Choose: How to Make End

The extensive coverage includes issues such as fear of dying and caregiver burnout.

The Right to Die: End of Life is a Fundamental Right

The Slippery Slope The concern for most opponents of assisted death laws are the supposed lack of safeguards and the slippery slope that would allow anyone to legally end their life for little reason. It includes extensive lists of resources and organizations, and a glossary necessary for understanding the issues at hand. Burnell provides guidelines at the end of each chapter on what to consider before preparing these important documents: how to preserve one's rights as a patient; how to choose the right doctor; the best place to be when critically ill; the laws governing advance directives; and the best alternatives for end-of-life care, such as good pain control and assisted dying where this is legal.
