WTO and Civil Society

Although the current trade and human rights regimes are both post-war phenomena, they have developed on parallel, separate and sometimes inconsistent tracks.

The Three Pillars of Sustainability

Instead, the findings indicate that NGO representatives rely on isomorphism and prominence when forming legitimacy beliefs.

The Rule of Lawyers and the Ethos of Diplomats: Reflections on the Internal and External Legitimacy of WTO Dispute Settlement

When IOs do not live up to expected procedural standards and are contested on those grounds, this typically generates efforts by the IO and its allies to defend the organization. ICFTU leaders have long been trying to get a seat for themselves at the WTO table.

The Three Pillars of Sustainability

The next section examines some of the difficulties involved in defining NGOs and, in analysing these issues, brings into focus some major aspects of NGO accountability. We wish to highlight three areas. The required informal accountability both between members of borrowing groups, and between these groups and their loan officers, was thus not always present.
