

Impact of World War II on the Soviet Union

Rowman & Allanheld - Aftermath of World War II

Description: -

- History and criticism
- English literature
- Literary Criticism & Collections / General
- Bibliography
- Literary studies: general
- Vietnamese Conflict, 1961-1975 -- Poetry.
- Macintosh (Computer)
- Church renewal.
- Christian education.
- Christian life.
- Linguistics.
- Mormon Church -- Doctrines
- Family -- Religious life
- Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints -- Doctrines
- Soviet Union -- History -- 1925-1953.
- World War, 1939-1945 -- Influence.
- Reconstruction (1939-1951) -- Soviet Union. Impact of World War II on the Soviet Union
- Impact of World War II on the Soviet Union
- Notes: Includes bibliographies and index.
- This edition was published in 1985

Filesize: 5.96 MB

Tags: #Aftermath #of #World #War #II

History Ireland

The strategy paid off, as such industrial increases were able to occur even while the Germans in late 1942 occupied more than half of European Russia, including 40 percent 80 million of its population, and approximately 2,500,000 square kilometres 970,000 sq mi of Soviet territory. Although Dutch forces re-occupied most of Indonesia's territory, a struggle ensued, and the majority of Indonesians, and ultimately international opinion, favoured Indonesian independence.

Impact of War World II

Political officers encouraged Soviet troops to seek revenge and terrorise the German population. The 19 million non-combat deaths had a variety of causes: starvation in the ; conditions in German prisons and concentration camps; mass shootings of civilians; harsh labour in German industry; famine and disease; conditions in Soviet camps; and service in German or German-controlled military units fighting the Soviet Union. Burma, Malaya, and Singapore were returned to Britain and French Indo-China back to France.

History Ireland

During and after the of , , an estimated 50,000 women and girls were raped.

History Ireland

Ribbontrop, the German foreign minister, signing the Nazi—Soviet pact on 23 August 1939.

History Ireland

Stalin was confident that the total war machine would eventually stop Germany, and with from the West, the Soviets stopped the some 30 kilometers or 18. We shall brook no delay. This was the importance of the prolonged defensive battle of Stalingrad that the Soviets waged from August to November 1942.

---

Related Books

- La France des travailleurs pauvres
- Quantum well and superlattice physics - 23-24 March 1987, Bay Point, Florida
- Brotherhood in the Old Testament
- Teaching mathematics - strategies that work, K-12
- COSTS OF PROTECTING JOBS IN 100 CANADIAN MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES.