Overview

Department of Education Office of Educational Research and Improvement, 1999.

Improving Curriculum

According to a K-12 Market Advisors report, teachers in the United States spend an average of 12 hours a week searching for or creating their own materials. Supporting Standards and Resources PSEL Standard 4 specifically focuses in on the role principals play in supporting coherent systems of curriculum, instruction, and assessment, including promoting instructional practice that is consistent with knowledge of child learning and development, effective pedagogy, and the needs of each student; and ensuring instructional practice that is intellectually challenging, authentic to student experiences, recognizes student strengths, and is differentiated and personalized.

NASSP

NAESP and the National Association of Secondary School Principals NASSP are launching the Principal Evaluation Initiative to develop guidelines to determine how, when and why principals should be evaluated —and to ensure that such systems are informed by the best research. These three domains of professional knowledge form the core content of professional development for teachers NCTM, 2000; Schulman, 1986.

Principals challenge Education Ministry over student failure

Thousand Oaks, CA: Corwin Press. A motivated teacher, as described here, is one who not only feels satisfied with his or her job, but also is empowered to strive for excellence and growth in instructional practice.

Motivating teachers to improve instruction

Benson County residents were not satisfied with the academic direction of the schools, and new leaders have begun working with schools to implement a set of comprehensive classroom changes to engage students in more challenging learning experiences. They would then work with the student to create a plan moving forward. The recommendations of the National Commission on Mathematics and Science Teaching for the 21st Century 2000 provide one model for multifaceted professional development.

The district must trust its principals to do the right thing, and principals must trust the district office to provide meaningful support and to make them a true partner in framing and achieving the district plan. Their knowledge is organized into meaningful patterns and structures and is conditionalized situated , meaning that what they know is accompanied by a specification of the contexts in which it is useful Glaser, 1992; Simon, 1980.
