Persian Gulf War

At the same time, the war's coverage was new in its instantaneousness. This conclusion is only reinforced by the rhetoric accompanying the missile attacks, described below, which suggests that the Iraqi military was at best indifferent to the plight of the civilian populations of Israel and Saudi Arabia, if not intent on causing as much damage and suffering as possible among those populations.

21 Facts About the First Gulf War

Iraq occupied Kuwait between August 1990 and January 1991 — and it was brutal. The United Arab Emirates and Kuwait were consistently overproducing; the latter at least in part to repair losses caused by Iranian attacks in the Iran—Iraq War and to pay for the losses of an economic scandal.

How Muhammad Ali secured the release of 15 US hostages in Iraq

The oil fires produced heavy smoke and pure black soot-filled plumes that polluted both the soil and the air. US President Bush repeatedly compared Saddam Hussein to Hitler. On August 3 the Security Council called for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, and on August 6 the council imposed a worldwide ban on trade with Iraq.

Milestones: 1989

Abuse of Coalition POWs During the conflict, coalition aircrew shot down over Iraq were displayed as on TV, most with visible signs of abuse.

Operation Desert Storm

I cannot tell you of any that I know of that have grossly missed the target.

But we too can harm you.

Desert Shield/Desert Storm

He argued that the US-supported Saudi state was an illegitimate and unworthy guardian of the holy cities of and. Iraqi troops--tired, hungry and war-weary from six months of economic blockade and more than a month of relentless allied bombing--surrendered by the thousands.
