

Mother-headed families and why they have increased

L. Erlbaum Associates - Appreciating How Fathers Give Children a Head Start

How have families and households become more diverse?

In the 1950s the "traditional nuclear family" was much more common. Since then, the nuclear family has declined and other family and household types increased:

The 'main types' of family which have replaced the nuclear family:	Other forms of increasing diversity (which cut across those to the left)
