Red Baron Pack on Steam

Richthofen met Oswald Boelcke again in August 1916, after another spell flying two-seaters on the Eastern Front. He continued to celebrate each of his victories in the same manner until he had 60 cups, by which time the dwindling supply of silver in blockaded Germany meant that silver cups could no longer be supplied. But after falling in love with the nurse Käte, Manfred realizes he is only used for propaganda means.

Further, he concurred with the rules of air fighting created by his late mentor Boelcke, who specifically advised pilots not to take unnecessary risks. After a long dogfight, Hawker was shot in the back of the head as he attempted to escape back to his own lines. Other icons include more traditional

Other sources have suggested that Gunner Robert Buie also of the 53rd Battery may have fired the fatal shot. The Air Up There: More Great Quotations on Flight.
