Chapter History

The grand jury found a bill for petit larceny, and several against persons for selling whisky to Indians, or selling foreign goods without license. For the convenience of the owners of fortunate numbers, Persons will be appointed in Boston, Hartford, New York and Albany, to pay Prizes. When the wind was fair they made good progress; if it was unfavorable, their boats having sails were capable of beating against the wind.

personal settlement. At Queenstown their boats were drawn over land, on carriages, with teams, by some Canadians, and launched at Chippeway, from whence they crossed to the mouth of Buffalo creek, and coasted up from there along the south shore of lake Erie.

A chapter in the history of Cleveland by Clarence Monroe Burton, Paperback

The season before, there had been an Indian hung for the murder of a white man, and I had the luck to sleep side by side with his frame, not fully cleaned. Although the project of connecting the lakes and the Ohio river with the sum of twelve thousand dollars had failed, Cleveland was attracting attention. Long seeing me shake, requested me to lie down.
